WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The Champion Women's Institute will hold their April meeting on Thursday, April 14th, instead of Tuesday, April 12th. This change is made to suit the convenience of Miss Holm and the pupils of her room who are providing the program. Members and friends will meet on Thursday, then, at 2:30 p. m. in the music room of the Public School, where the culmination of an enterprise will be presented for their approval. They will gather afterward at the home of Mrs. R. I. Baker for the business meeting, the report of the District Convention by Mrs. F. Little, and lunch. Roll Call—School Day Anecdotes. Refreshment Convener—Mrs. F. Little.

CHAMPION SCHOOLS LEAD IN FESTIVAL

The final results of the Little Bow School Festival show that the Champion schools were successful in winning the greatest number of points. This makes the third year in succession that Champion has won. Great credit is due the teachers for their untiring efforts in training the students for this event.

Owing to a considerable sickness in their school during the winter, Carmangay was unable to send the usual number of entries this year.

The points won by the different schools are as follows: Champion 136, Barons 128, Nobleford 90, Carmangay 23.

The Central Service Station are sporting a new Service truck with the words "Artie Oil Sales Ltd." neatly displayed thereon.

The regular meeting of the A. Y. P. A. was held on Monday evening with a good attendance. The Stereopticon pictures of events of Holy Week, shown by Canon Winter, were very interesting and were appreciated by the young people.

Brown McDonald, prominent local sheep man reports a splendid lambing season, 50% being twins. The sheep were in excellent condition and came through the storm with no fatalities.

The I. O. D. E. are sponsoring a dance to be held in the Community hall, on Monday, April 18th. Admission 50 cents per person. Music by Turley's orchestra. The Badminton cedar chest will be drawn for during the evening.

Farmers who were unable to get to town until the end of the week, report losses in stock. One farmer found his cow buried alive with only her head visible, and all efforts to save her life failed, after she was rescued.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Bell, who have spent the winter months in California, returned last week. Mrs. Bell feels much improved after her delightful rest in the sunny clime. Unfortunately, they arrived to be greeted by the blizzard, but stated that they preferred this to the flood they witnessed in the south.

Champion is gradually emerging from the effects of the worst blizzard seen here in many years. The snow plow drove through town on Friday, tearing down the numerous drifts, several feet in height, which blocked the highway from the north and practically covered the north side of the village streets.

The pheasants, in a pen on the farm of M. G. Clever, were buried under four feet of snow, but rallied quickly after they were dug out.

Much damage was caused to buildings in town when the kale swept snow and dust into the attics. As it melted it gradually leaked through causing damage below.

The farmers, however, welcome the snow as it adds moisture to the seed-bed.

Mrs. Harry Smith, assisted by Mrs. W. A. McIntyre, entertained the Ladies' Aid at her home on Thursday. A good crowd was in attendance, in spite of the drifts which had to be conquered in order to be present.

The ladies decided to hold an Easter tea. The bazaar was also discussed and it was decided to hold one in the fall. Chain teas will be held later on in the year.

Thieves made an attempt to enter the farm home of M. G. Clever last Thursday night, but their efforts were blocked by Harry Maronic, who was in charge of the farm during the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Clever in Los Angeles.

Mr. Maronic, who had just retired for the evening, heard a noise below and on investigation, discovered a man trying to enter the house. He grabbed his gun and stepping outside fired into the air. The culprit made a hasty exit leaving a sack and knife behind him.

LOCAL HUNTER HAS SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Twenty-seven coyotes in the catch recorded by Art. Ulrich, local huntsman, for this winter's activities. Mr. Ulrich feels that the season has been very profitable, as the average price obtained was $7 per hide. The last catch, which was two weeks ago, proved to be his finest specimen and netted him $8.00 (green).

Mr. Ulrich uses four greyhounds and a model A Ford. A box on the back of the Ford houses the dogs, and the driver feels that he can challenge any car in the country when it comes to jumping ditches and riding the prairie. Most of his catches have been made in fields and this entails a good deal of rough riding for the little old car, but it has made it with very little fuss.

LOCALS

A local sportsman recently became interested in raising chukar partridge and decided to make an effort to secure some eggs, which he planned on hatching with the aid of an old hen. However, upon writing to Schwab Bros. in Muscatine, Iowa, dealers in eggs of every kind, and receiving their quotations, he suddenly changed his mind. The chukar partridge eggs were quoted at $7.50 per dozen and Muscatine is a long way off.

D. H. Stango left yesterday for Wetaskiwin, Alberta, taking his entire farm outfit by C. P. R. freight.

The Ladies' Aid of Champion United church are holding an Easter Tea and Bake Sale on Saturday, April 16th, from 3 to 6 p. m. The menu for the tea consists of:

Fruit Salad—Bread and Butter Cake—Cookies

And the charge is 25c. At the bake sale, you will be able to buy cakes, pies, rolls, cookies, doughnuts, cup cakes, chickens and so on. You are not very anxious to bake Easter week end—are you? It is naturally a holiday season. Come and buy your home cooking from the ladies of the Aid.

Final notice as to the place will appear next week. The Aid hopes to secure the former Rex Cafe, for the afternoon.

Miss Gertrude Vershyn of Lethbridge was a Sunday visitor in the district.

Fred Clever recently purchased an Irish spaniel from G. K. McLean. Mr. Clever anticipates an active hunting season with "Pat" and his new purchase.

As soon as roads permit, Mr. and Mrs. F. Caldwell, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. I. Fisher, will leave for Conrad and Browning.

Harold Matlock was unfortunate in losing 10 or 12 hogs in the recent storm. In an effort to secure shelter, the hogs crowded together and smothered. Some are still missing and Mr. Matlock fears they are buried beneath the snow. The loss has been quite heavy as the hogs were in prime condition.

Source Of Peace And Plenty

"Peaceful is my garden. Contentment is my lot," is the motto appearing in colored wood on many an old sampler or in old English script on the more modern card.

The twin sentiments breathe an association of ideas that is most appropriate, for what man or woman is there who does not instinctively release a sigh of contentment when brought into contact with a peaceful garden at the close of a long and weary day. Indeed, what is more restful than a period of physical and spiritual repose as the shadows of tree and shrub lengthen, as the perfume of flowers is released, when the robin sings his good night note and the hawk mottos with oscillating wings darts nectar from luscious and acrid clouds.

These are joys and pleasures which all may drink deep. They come within the experience, the ken, of all who can set aside a plot of ground, be it large or small and devote some little time therein in sowing along a few seedlings, be they of tree or shrub, flower or vegetable. For sooner or later, tended with loving kindness, they shall eventually incorporate a sanctified spot, where mundane troubles and trials can be shed for a season and brief respite may be had from carking cares.

From Earliest Times

It is the desire to create a sanctuary for himself that forms one of the most impelling motives to induce man to create a garden for himself, coupled with the desire inherent from the days of Adam and Eve to co-operate with Nature to make things grow, thus perhaps a little of the pride of possession.

And all these pleasures combined with a utilitarian value are attainable for every man and woman on the prairies, whether resident on the farm or a dweller in the village or small town. All that is necessary is a moderate amount of space, sufficient to manufacture a garden from which delectable vegetables and small fruits may be culled in their season and where trees, shrubs and flowers may afford delight to the creative artist.

In the village or small town, it may be the desire to have the dwelling set, in some cases fortified by an additional vacant lot, and on the farm it may run to the dimensions of several acres, but no matter whether the area to be cultivated is great or small, at least some space should be set aside to create a happy spot.

The only other essential is a few seeds and the cost of enough for the first season's efforts is so small as to be almost negligible. After the first year if a program of maintenance and regular weeding and division is followed, a garden that will be a permanent joy can be built up rapidly, with the purchase each year of additional packages of seeds of new varieties.

Can Build Rapidly

If a seed selection program is carried out from year to year it will not be long before the amateur farm or village gardener will be able to engage in landscape architecture on an appreciable scale, planting in mass formation for variety, color or type to produce as fine an effect as is found in the best of city parks. By adopting the same program it will not be long before he will be able to develop types of vegetables best suited to his own requirements and the process of building up by selection can be carried out just as effectively and efficiently in the kitchen garden as in the section of the grounds devoted to plantations solely to please the eye.

Where economy is a factor in the matter, a little need be spent in the purchase of shrubs and trees if more advantage were taken of native varieties which, after all, are most appropriate, for they have the merit of being acclimated and beautiful groupings can be made of species which can be had for the taking in their native habitat and with good results provided proper care is exercised in their removal.

Apart altogether from the value of a garden from the aesthetic viewpoint, the utilitarian value is one which should not be overlooked. In the light of the experiences of the past few years of drought the importance of raising produce for the table is materially enhanced and doubtless this side of the question has a much stronger appeal to a much greater proportion of rural residents than was the case a few years ago. Such a garden has an intrinsic importance which must not be forgotten.

At the time of writing favorable climatic prospects for starting a garden or rehabilitating a run down garden this spring appear to be much brighter than they have for some years over the greater area of the prairie provinces and in the not unusual desire to recover losses of the past few years in the grain fields it is to be hoped that the rewards that can be secured from a garden will not be overestimated.

Use Of Waste Material

Reference has been made to the opportunity of taking advantage of materials to hand in the construction of a garden and this is referred to by Annette Thomas of Erskine, Alberta, in the current issue of "Forest and Outdoors" when she suggests that more use could be made of waste field stone to build up walled gardens, such as they have them in England and concludes by quoting Elias Carmen:

"Where is Heaven? 'T is not
Just a friendly garden plot.
Walled with stone and roofed with sun,
Where the days pass one by one
Not too fast and not too slow,
Looking backward as they go
To transport the pensive mind."

A Ninety-Foot Model

A model of a whale ninety-feet in length—the largest model in the world—is nearing completion at the Natural History Museum, 221, Regent Street, London Daily Sketch. Much of the data from which the original scale plans were made have been gathered by the naturalists and scientists in the Discovery, which is still in the Antarctic.

No Doubt About It

The professor of law has been talking steadily for more than an hour, and his class was becoming a little restless.

"Take any title, for instance," he droned on. "When it is brought it goes to the buyer."

"What about coal?" interjected a weary voice.

The professor gazed over his glasses at the interrupter.

"Well," he mopped, "what about it?"

"When coal's bought, doesn't it go to the seller?" asked the youthful student.

FLIN FLON

"The Story of Its Finding and Position To-day"

By PRATT KEHN

SKATING, HOCKEY, CURLING
24 HOURS DAILY AT
FLIN FLON

If you never realized that a skating rink with ice sheet 60 x 100 and seating capacity of 1,200, the only steam heated rink in the West, is to be found at Flin Flon, Manitoba, 180 miles north from Winnipeg. There it is, built on the ruins of 1914-15 on the same plans as the Hamilton, Ontario, rink, and inaugurated from at a cost of $23,000, one-third by popular subscription and two-thirds by the Hudson Bay Mining & Smelting Co. Now its value at $28,000, on second-hand real-estate.

Skating starts first week in November and closes first week in April, but no money is spent on artificial ice equipment. The thermometer outside registering 40 below, but inside all is comfortable.

Flin Flon last year entered in the Saskatchewan North-Western Hockey League. North Hatfield beat Flin Flon in the league race, but then went on to be runner-up in the Allen Cup trophy competition. This season Flin Flon won the northern title from Saskatoon and in the play-off with Moose Jaw, representing the Saskatchewan championship. So good hockey is played in Flin Flon.

Curling, 16 features in an extension to the rink. There are six sheets now, with five regular curling clubs.

The curling rink works 24 hours here, but curlers must call off shifts at all hours and compete with town rinks for other curlers. There are also quite a few curlers, but the big event is the annual bonspiel for visiting curlers at the end of the season.

Last winter 288 curlers were engaged, 25 outside rinks and 4.

A Doubtful Asset

Conquest Of Ethiopia Has Not Done Much For Italy

Mussolini knows by now that Ethiopia is not going to be a reservoir of man power and raw materials which he had hoped to find, it says Ludwig Lore, in the New York Post. It may be there, but it is not out of another question. Estimates of the population of Ethiopia range from five to ten millions. The larger figure would not provide the 3,000,000 Abyssinians Rome wanted to bring into its armies. With Italy's soldiers' followers staunchly resisting "pacification"—7,000 Italians have been killed there in two months—Mussolini, in case of a European war, would probably have to send many thousands of his army to the conquered territory to control the natives, who would surely try to take advantage of the situation.

The Ministry of Italian Africa has granted no more than £1,014,000 for the present fiscal year, an increase of 1,206,000,000 over the previous figure and even this amount might not be enough to finance the development of Ethiopia. It has been estimated that a satisfactory road network in the conquered territory will cost almost 3,000,000,000 lire. Some expense had been expected, but never this. Nor was the most possible Italian credit advance of the difficulties to be overcome in making the new slaves of Empire pay for itself even possible.

It is not a pretty picture. No economist would give Italy a chance to survive a real war. Yet she continues to win. Mussolini is shifting hard. His people are discontented, his treasury empty, while it is reported that food rationing is to be inaugurated soon. All he has is the best poker face in history and unlimited gall.

Unemployed Capital

Dead Dollars Increase Unemployment And Add to Depression

In times such as these the dead dollar is the one that adds to the depression and to unemployment. The government is inclined to follow the so-called wealth effect so far as to compete with business, say the experts of enterprise. The dollar is the enterprise and drive the working dollar under cover. The unemployment of capital is the root of the problem facing us today. The dollar won't work without a fair wage, nor risk loss if there is fear of confiscation.—Brandon Star.

Ticks can live eight months without water and three years without food, scientists report.

"FLIN FLON"

The Town That's All Lit Up! Don't get me wrong, this, I mean the electric lights are never turned out, night or day, on the streets. Some day they may, when the electric company can catch up with the growth of the town, but at present they can't stop to figure out switches, etc., and it's clearer to let the lights burn.

Surprisingly good, and well-behaved in Flin Flon. Of course residents run 24 hours a day because miners are always going off or coming on shifts, and meals must be provided. But other stores, except promptly, even on Saturday night, at 10 o'clock, and they really stay.

Crime is hardly known in the town, the worst of late being the disappearance of three ex-convicts, and many readers will say—that's no crime.

Hospital, excellent schools, skating and curling rink, community hall, etc., are largely due to the town authorities and the Hudson Bay Mining & Smelting Co., the owners of Flin Flon. They are looking to the future, and they really stay enough on hand to run another 20 to 40 years.

Curling and skating rinks at Flin Flon—heated and lighted by electricity. Something doing every hour of the 24—believe it or not!

The Main Street at Flin Flon, Manitoba—paving is expected soon. The tar sands of Alberta may be used in a mixture.

FRUIT-A-LIVES LIVER TABLETS

Naval Race

Monster Battleships May Be Built

A naval race now threatens in monster battleships. Conversations between Great Britain, the United States and France have resulted in a point which it is virtually taken for granted they will have to invoke the escalator clause of the London naval treaty and build battleships exceeding 35,000 tons.

To all it will mean a heavy increase in the growing cost of naval armaments.

Japan is the immediate cause. The London naval treaty limited the size of battleships to 35,000 tons. Great Britain, the United States and France accepted the treaty but Japan did not.

Under the escalator clause signatures are entitled, after consultation, to increase the 35,000 ton limit in circumstances occur which in their view make it necessary that the clause should be invoked.

The treaty powers have already approached Japan with a request for information as to whether, in her opinion, it is proposed to exceed the 35,000-ton limit. Japan declined to give information.

Only Two Now Survive

Of 18 Men Who Constituted The Borden Cabinet Of 1911

Only two of the 18 men who constituted the Borden cabinet after the reciprocity election of 1911. Many, had of course, passed away in previous years, and there are, indeed, only two now surviving. The most recent to go having been Robert Borden himself at 82. Hon. W. J. Roche at 78, Sir Douglas Hazen at 77, Sir George Prendergast this year at 80, and now, at 76, Hon. Martin Burrell, who has been parliamentary librarian since 1920. Of the sixteen members of the first Borden cabinet who have passed away, only four died before reaching 70; nine were between 70 and 79, and three were 80 or over.—Toronto Star.

Manufacturing Miracles

Machines Make Combs Out Of Small Colored Granules

Miracles of manufacturing are nowhere more apparent than in the use of modern plastics. Machines are now in use in Canada, which receive small colored granules at one end while they turn out at the other finished combs in all shapes and sizes. Only in its infancy now, injection moulding holds possibly the key to the next era in manufacturing. Combs are by no means the only things that these machines can turn out.

Migration To Britain

The Calgary Herald says figures recently produced in the British House of Commons indicate that immigration into Great Britain from Ireland is on the increase. The Dominion Secretary stated that the total net immigration from across the Irish Sea last year was between 20,000 and 22,000. In 1934 the total was 11,800.

At the present time, approximately half of the people in the United States carry life insurance.

HEADACHE AFTER HEADACHE

Now She's Free From Them

A woman writes: "I would like everyone who suffers from headaches to try Kruschen. I have been taking Kruschen 1/2 a bottle free from a headache. But since I have been taking it regularly I have no more headaches, for which I am very thankful. I have had some very small doses of Kruschen every morning in a glass of water, before my breakfast, and I feel so well." (Mrs.) A.R.D.

How do you deal with headaches? Do you just take something to deaden the pain, without getting rid of the trouble which causes the pain? Headaches can generally be traced to a disordered stomach and to the unabsorbed retention in the system of disgusting waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons—prevent them forming again—and you'll never have to worry any more from that cause. And that is just how Kruschen Sals bring relief and lasting relief from headaches. Kruschen Sals keep your system pure, your blood completely of clogging waste matter.

WHAT HO!

—By—
RICHARD CONNELL
By Arrangement With Thomas Allen, Publisher, Toronto.

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued

Hingley Castle lay wrapped in the cotton-wool of slumber. No sound could be heard. All was still and quiet, the hounds were resting their tired troglous and throats. A bright moon, full to bursting, hung over the castle, and the night was so democratic on sleeping peer and commoner alike. As he drifted into a dream, Ernest heard the distant clock in the village steeple to a drowsy tone.

The night was catching up on the daren and Ernest was lost in a dream in which he was dancing with Beat on a desert isle, when the cyclone struck the castle, and blew him out of dreamland and his bed.

At least it seemed to Ernest's sleep-drenched brain that only a cyclone could cause the commotion that had broken down, and was rocking the castle.

Women screamed. Men shouted. Dogs added yells and howls to the bellish chorus. Clattering feet raced along corridors. Doors slammed. That state which is nearly summed up in the word "pandemonium," might not be a small boy on his grandfather's lawn across, Ernest had experienced a cyclone, and the tenth floor on that terrifying occasion had left such a mark on his mind that repressions of it shook him to the marrow.

He lit on his feet and was about to dash out of the room when he remembered the sleeping cub. He caught it up, held it tight to his pajama-clad chest, and dived out of his room.

Confusion filled the castle, and blasts of noise hurried down the corridor and belabored his ears. Above the tumult he heard a sound he had come to know: the low, steady roar of a pack of fox-hounds in full cry.

The baby fox, recognizing the voices of his mother's assassins, and sensing its own peril, leaped first into Ernest's bosom, whimpering piteously. The sound of the hounds grew louder. The sound of them coming that way, and coming fast.

Blindly Ernest tore down the corridor, away from the crashing battalions of death. A door opened him, but only for an instant. He lunged against it, it gave and he tumbled headlong into the room. It happened to be the bedroom occupied by the Duke and Duchess of Bedfordshire. The hounds were close at his heels now. The duchess, her hair like a fright-wave, was shrieking "Police!"

The duke had caught up a bed-side brandy bottle and was brandishing it, ready to defend life, limb and the honor of the Bedfordings. An enterprising hound bounded through the open door. Ernest made a flying leap over the broad bed and its occupants. The hounds leaped too, and collided with the duke. Other hounds streamed into the room, and the bed became a tangled, howling snarl of dogs and nobility.

Ernest did not tarry there. He left the hounds embroiled with aristocracy and lit out for his exploded cottered spot.

The room into which he exploded contained the Countess of Bathurst, in curl papers.

Screaming, "Help! The Monster!" she faintly. Ernest went over her like Eliza crossing the ice, two property cakes ahead of the bloodhounds. With the cub under his arm like a foot-ball he made a broken field run through the labyrinthine passages of the castle, bounding guests from his path. As most of the locks on the castle doors had long since been rendered useless by rust and dust, he dithered in and out of rooms, usually just ahead of the clashing hounds. The dogs were having a field day. When Ernest was far sent on his shoes, clothes and hands, had gone to the bedrooms earlier in the evening he had made madly but efficiently tossed up the entire castle. To the hounds it seemed as if they were in a happy hunting ground with a fox aspect for all of them. A squad of them kept after Ernest and the cub, but the rest split and followed the scent through house and hall, and some of the hounds, unimpaired of the furor they were causing among the guests. On hand chased Babbette, clad in an inadequate nightgown, from the servants' quarters all the way to the butler's pantry.

Ernest, out of breath, stumbled into Lady Rosa's room.

"Ernest!" she cried. "What's the matter?"

"The hounds—they'll kill him—save him," he panted.

"Oh, the poor little thing!" she said, taking the cub in her arms. "What's the matter, Quick?"

Ernest crashed the door.

A second time the leader of the chasing pack snatched his head and scratched and yammered.

"Hear him, hear him, Captain Duff! Hooper hanging gruff orders in his military voice. He was calling of the hounds.

"That American fellow is to blame," they heard him say, angrily. "Bringing a cub in here and tracking foot-scent all over the place. How the hounds got out I don't know but I at strongly suspect he let them out."

"—and," said another voice, the ears. "That temporary fence was weak. I told you that."

"It's all his doing, I think," said the captain.

"But why should Ernest do anything so anti-social?" asked the earl.

GIN PILLS FOR THE KIDNEYS

On the way out Ernest rode beside Lady Rosa. The pace was slow, the road smooth and Fin McCoil was docile, suspiciously docile, Ernest felt for one with so wicked an eye and so malign a reputation for turbulence.

Exhausted by the morning air and the nearness of Rosa, Ernest began to feel a little less like Convict No. 131313 waiting for the warden to escort him to the lethal chamber. He felt, indeed, that he was doing nobly inasmuch as his previous equestrian experience was limited to a few juvenile jaunts on a play-house, and his memorable gallop started on the wide, white path.

But since the hunt started, and Fin McCoil gathered momentum, Ernest's assurance left him like a bubble from a burning hole.

It was Ernest Hingley's intention to remain inconspicuously in the rear when his defects as a rider might have been unobserved, and from which advantage point he could retire from the hunt with a minimum of publicity. This plan, however, was at variance with Fin McCoil's ideas. That proud and masterful breed evinced a racial aversion to taking dust from the hated Sassenachs. Fin surged to the front, thrusting the mounts of Alton and baron from his path like a variety full back going through the cushions.

Ernest's ears were as full as King Camie's attempt to stem the bristly tide. His endeavors to curb or guide Fin were as futile as King Camie's attempt to stem the bristly tide. Ernest, accepting the fact that he had no more control over his destiny than a toy balloon in a tornado, concentrated, with all his brains, sinews and will-power, on the task of sticking and staying.

He was so engrossed in the business of remaining in status quo that he hardly noticed that Fin had jumped two minor hedges and had levitated himself, and rider, over a difficult ditch. Ernest's saddle was giving him a sound spanking, and Captain Duff-Hooper, as M.P.H., was shouting caustic injunctions at him not to ride over the hounds; but what the captain and the other thought of him did not matter much to Ernest now.

Boy's Brain Works More Like Mother's And Girl's Like Father's.

A son's brain works more like the mother's, a daughter's brain more like the father's, a scientific report from the University of Toronto asserted.

Dr. Abraham D. Bottcher, of the department of psychology found this, he reports, by studying the brain-wave patterns of a number of families.

The outstanding result of these studies was that each individual has an unique brain-wave pattern, a pulsation of the brain cells all his own.

The High-Up Executive

Usually Wears Out Heart Under Strain Before Normal Time

According to J. C. Kirkwood, in Marketing, if you want to die in your old age, become a high-up executive in a big business enterprise. The strain on you can be trusted to wear out your heart 25 years or so before the normal time for your natural services.

The bigger the business, the more executives it consumes. Those men who, 25 years ago made themselves kings of finance—who merged small business enterprises to make a giant single company, with millions of workers in their stock structure—put the "You'll die early" sign on those charged with the job of earning dividends for stockholders.

It may look to be attractive—this being president or vice-president of a huge business enterprise; but if you will canvass the high-up executives of big business in Canada and the United States these days you will find from them that the available men are those captaining small business enterprises able to keep aloft in the shallow waters of depression.

Huge salaries cost a lot to buy. They cost sleepless nights, endless anxiety, had to wear out bankers and creditors, and unrelieved heart and mind strain. They keep men out of their homes. They detach them from their wives and children. They take away all the sweetness of life.

Should Become General Ontario University Decides To Abolish Practice Of Hazing

The student body of the University of Western Ontario, in London, has decided to abolish the practice of initiating freshmen—of hazing, that is. The University is to be commended for a sensible step, and it is to be hoped its example will be followed by other Canadian institutions of the higher learning where the practice still continues.

Hazing is an utterly indefensible practice that damages the prestige of the institution from which it comes. It is a degrading and humiliating practice, and it is to be hoped its example will be followed by other Canadian institutions of the higher learning where the practice still continues.

Authority On Literature Defence Force Is Small

Hon. Martin Burrell, Parliamentary Librarian, Dies In Ottawa

Hon. Martin Burrell, 79, parliamentary librarian and minister in the Borden war-time cabinet, died at his home in Ottawa after an illness of three weeks.

Since 1920 he has become noted as the custodian of the library's 500,000 books and an authority on literature. He has contributed to many Canadian periodicals and newspapers.

Born at Parrington, Berks, England, he came to Canada in 1883 to take up fur farming in the Niagara Peninsula.

At the turn of the century, Mr. Burrell went to British Columbia and acted as municipal clerk, having been elected mayor of Grand Forks, B.C. He was defeated when he sought a seat in the House of Commons for Yale-Cariboo in 1904 general election, but was elected in 1908 and re-elected in 1911 and 1915.

After his 1911 triumph, Mr. Burrell was appointed minister of agriculture in the government of the late Sir Robert Borden and became a member of the privy council. He resigned the portfolio of agriculture in 1915 and took over the post of secretary of state and minister of mines until 1920, when he became minister of customs and inland revenue.

Rhodes Scholars Have Contributed Largely To No. 100 Life Of Canada

Canadian Rhodes scholars have contributed largely to Canada's national life, Daniel K. Michener, Canadian representative of the Rhodes trustees, said in commenting upon a contrary opinion expressed by Mayor J. J. McLaughlin of Belleville.

Mayor Breen was quoted as saying before the convention of the Property Owners' Association of Canada at Toronto that "statisticians show that out of our 232 Rhodes scholars, not a single one ever attained national fame or great distinction."

Hon. Norman Rogers, Dominion Labor minister, was mentioned by Mr. Michener as one who has obtained a measure of national fame. Then, too, Mr. Michener said, there were H. R. H. Ralph Sherman, Bishop of Calgary, and George V. Ferguson, managing editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, among others.

WHY NOT!

The Ontario government is again to the fore with their resolution requesting the Dominion government to legalize the operation of sweepstakes.

Times and conditions are changing, we might as well uncover our heads and take a good look into the future, because sweepstakes are coming and we might just as well take the profit and use it to benefit our Canadian hospitals. We will find that many Canadians will approve of this scheme and will eventually enjoy the fruits of their own labor.

Several Champion residents who were visiting in Calgary, had the pleasure of attending a three act comedy "To Have and to Have Not," which was staged by the Dramatic Club of the Technical School in the theatre of the Calgary Normal School last Saturday. Miss Thora Wellman was a member of the cast and Barry Hummel, who has been instructing in blacksmithing and welding, played in the orchestra which was an added attraction.

Continued increase in egg production in this district has caused a considerable reduction in price. Eggs are now quoted at 12¢ for large and 10¢ for pullets. The blizzard condition did not alter the situation to any extent and prices have not been altered due to it. Buyers do not anticipate any further change in prices.

Dairy butter has been very scarce due mostly to the fact that local farmers are shipping their cream. The increased price for butter has made shipping profitable and it also lessens the amount of work. Feed is also getting short causing a cream shortage. Dairy butter at present is quoted at 25¢, creamery 40¢.

Barney Hummel, who recently finished a term of instructing in blacksmithing at the Technical school in Calgary, returned two rather unique tales, especially for Alberta, in regards to three of his students. Two boys, who were sixteen or nineteen years of age, and who hailed from the Peace River country, informed him that they had never seen a gopher. They were farm boys and had yet to view the menace of the southern prairies.

grain and other crops by means of cheap and simple treatment of the seed with ethyl mercury phosphate dust. While this substance is well known as an efficient preventive of smut, Mr. Scott's researches have demonstrated more specifically with its effective control of root-rot, and the results he has obtained are remarkably impressive.

The local Boy Scouts, under the temporary leadership of James Brown and Richard Dupue, had the Vulcan and High River scouts as guests at their regular meeting on Friday evening. Mr. Johnson, of Calgary, was present and entertained the boys with a delightful motion picture on camp life. A small portion of the picture was in technicolor. Mr. Johnson then demonstrated knot tying and stories were related by various scouts.

The local boys are desirous of obtaining a Scoutmaster, and they are hoping that someone interested will volunteer to take over these duties.

"OLD TED" WAS FAITHFUL STEED

Old Ted, a horse owned by George Taylor, local drayman, died in his harness last week, after eighteen years of faithful service on the dray.

Ted, along with his mate, was bred on a farm northeast of Lomond 28 years ago. Mr. Taylor purchased the team in the spring of 1920. Since that time the team have been used continually on the dray and have never missed a day during this period.

Two days prior to his death, Ted showed signs that everything was not quite right with him. On Thursday, his last haul, he fell down and being unable to get up, his owner was forced to destroy him.

Much concern was evident around town over the incident as Ted's presence on the street has been a daily event for many years.
